

Bobcat (Felis rufus or Lynx rufus)

The bobcat is rarely seen. However, it is very common throughout Arizona. The feline is named for its short, “bob-like” tail, which is only about 5 inches long. The short tail and its black spotted coat are different than all other wild cats in the state, making them easy to identify.